

Changing Climates

college-level content primer-level clarity

for nonspecialist adults, especially college students & teachers

talks for CSU (#s) website—to broaden our reach communication (DISCCRS)

100 Views of Climate Change

HOME CLIMATE NATURE HUMANS ACTION BIG PICTURE CC@CSU

ARCHIVE 100 VIEWS OF CLIMATE CHANGE UPCOMING EVENTS

The Climate Itself

Living with Nature

The Human Face

Taking Action

The Big Picture

Changing Climates @ CSU

Clear, Current, High-Quality Resources

Global climate change is everybody's business. It's a challenge so daunting and far-reaching, and so prone to misinterpretation, that it needs to be understood and tackled from as many different perspectives as possible. That's what this website is about.

100 Views of Climate Change takes inspiration from the 19th-century artist Hokusai, who created 100 Views of Mount Fuji, Japan's most sacred mountain. Though climate change is hard to "see" in the everyday sense, it looms over our lives as much as Fuji looms over the Japanese landscape.

Whether you're a college teacher, a student, an interested citizen, or a researcher, you'll find useful materials here in the form of short and long videos, notes about good books and articles, and links to key websites. We offer clear, current, high-quality information about climate change—on ethics and atmospheric science, economics and agriculture, literature and ecology, policy and refugees, and more.

CMMAP For more information, contact us

Colorado State University

Contact CSU | Disclaimer | Equal Opportunity | Privacy Statement
Colorado State University - Pueblo | Colorado State University System
Colorado State University, Fort Collins, CO 80523 USA
© 2010 Colorado State University

<http://changingclimates.colostate.edu>

Watch & Listen: 68

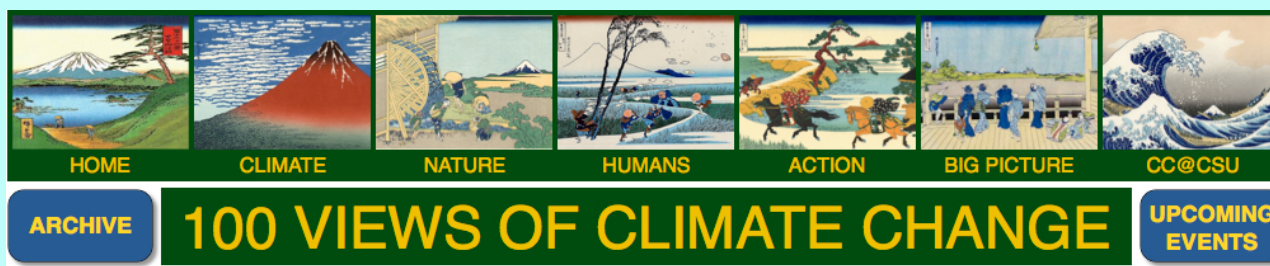

Read: 164

Teach: 23

Total: 255 (+)

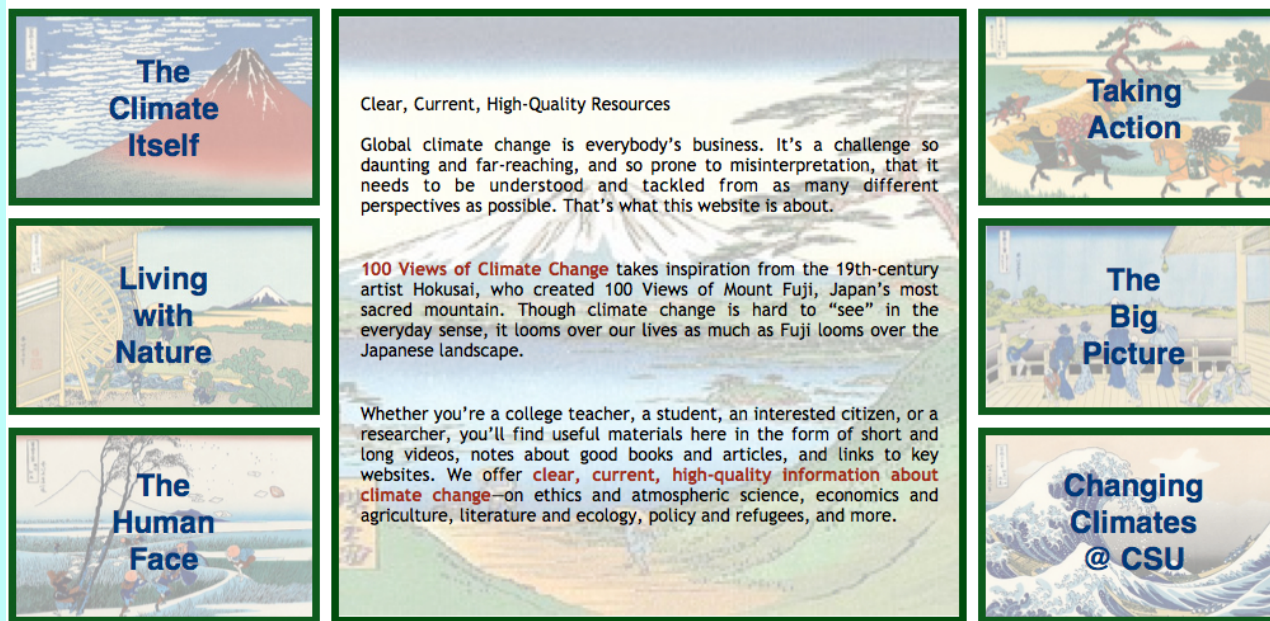

Thanks to Kelley!

100 Views of Climate Change

HOME CLIMATE NATURE HUMANS ACTION BIG PICTURE CC@CSU

ARCHIVE 100 VIEWS OF CLIMATE CHANGE UPCOMING EVENTS

The Climate Itself

Living with Nature

The Human Face

Taking Action

The Big Picture

Changing Climates @ CSU

Clear, Current, High-Quality Resources

Global climate change is everybody's business. It's a challenge so daunting and far-reaching, and so prone to misinterpretation, that it needs to be understood and tackled from as many different perspectives as possible. That's what this website is about.

100 Views of Climate Change takes inspiration from the 19th-century artist Hokusai, who created 100 Views of Mount Fuji, Japan's most sacred mountain. Though climate change is hard to "see" in the everyday sense, it looms over our lives as much as Fuji looms over the Japanese landscape.

Whether you're a college teacher, a student, an interested citizen, or a researcher, you'll find useful materials here in the form of short and long videos, notes about good books and articles, and links to key websites. We offer clear, current, high-quality information about climate change—on ethics and atmospheric science, economics and agriculture, literature and ecology, policy and refugees, and more.

For more information, contact us

Contact CSU | Disclaimer | Equal Opportunity | Privacy Statement
Colorado State University - Pueblo | Colorado State University System
Colorado State University, Fort Collins, CO 80523 USA
© 2010 Colorado State University

<http://changingclimates.colostate.edu>

too much information (topic clumps)

too little information (e.g., economics)

annotate, cull, replace

advertise

new videos

fact sheets / handouts

(variability, extremes)

another lecture series

(basics; beyond; here; we)

one-to-one CSU

(intro psych, soc, econ, art hist, etc.)

communication