

AT623 Announcements

Spring 2020

Instructor: David Randall

(david.randall@colostate.edu, office in Rm. 222 of ATS West)

Teaching Assistant: None

There will be no exams. Grades will be based on homework. I have no objection to students working together on the homework, as long as everybody makes a good contribution to the effort.

A class web page is here:

<http://saddleback.atmos.colostate.edu/group/dave/at623/>

and will be updated occasionally during the semester.

I am working on a comprehensive set of notes for the class, but it's still at a fairly early stage and will take years to finish. I'll be emailing chunks of notes during the semester.

You are very welcome to come see me outside of class any time, as long as I'm not actually meeting with someone else. I typically arrive at my office at about 8 am and leave for the day at about 3 pm. If you want to make an appointment, send me an email.

Please ask lots of questions either in class or outside of class. You and your fellow students and I will all learn more. I also encourage you to ask questions about the homework. I do give hints!

There are nominally 30 class meetings. As of the beginning of the semester, my calendar says that I will miss only one of them:

February 11 (at UCAR Board of Trustees meeting)

It is possible but not likely that more classes will be missed. All missed classes will be made up on a schedule that I will work out with your input.
